

The Radiant Force of the Spiritual Genius

The power of a spiritual genius is not domination, manipulation, or force—it is clarity operating without obstruction. It arises when fear has been burned away, when the illusion of self has dissolved, and when compassion has matured into unstoppable resolve. From this maturity, a unique strength appears, marked by six luminous capacities that open the spiritual genius to the inner workings of all beings.

The Six Currents of Higher Knowledge

Her power expresses itself first as an intuitive knowledge of lives.

She can sense how beings move through the cycles of experience—how they die, how they return, how their past choices sculpt their present circumstances. This is not prophecy; it is deep insight into the mechanics of cause and effect.

She holds intuitive knowledge of speech, hearing the tones, intentions, and karmic traces hidden within every voice. Whether the words come from beings in coarse worlds or subtle ones, she perceives their meaning without distortion.

She possesses intuitive knowledge of minds, seeing clearly the moods, fears, motives, and veiled assumptions that shape the consciousness of others. To her, minds are transparent the way water is transparent to light.

She perceives the sum of good and evil, understanding the karmic residues that have accumulated in beings across lifetimes. She sees not only what they have done but how those actions continue to shape them.

She knows the natural destinations of beings, discerning the currents that will carry them—upward, downward, or across the worlds—based on their present momentum. She knows where liberation is possible and where guidance is needed.

And she recognizes the very process of transcendence, seeing clearly how beings shed their addictions and instinctual patterns, how awakening takes root, and how involuntary rebirth comes to an end.

These six powers operate everywhere, unobstructed across all worlds and all types of beings. They are not supernatural feats—they are the natural clarity of a mind freed from confusion.

Where Such Power Comes From

The spiritual genius does not acquire this power through force or ambition. It flowers only after she has reached the full purity of deep contemplation—a state where the mind has settled beyond conceptual thought, where attention is united with the structure of reality itself.

Through steady nonconceptual intuition, she sees things as they are, without the distortions imposed by language, habit, or fear.

Through conscious attention to reality's true structure, she aligns her mind with the Dharma—not as doctrine, but as direct perception.

When these two come together—nonconceptual presence and unwavering attunement—the ground shifts. A new level of clarity emerges. The boundaries that once limited perception dissolve.

From this, the supreme accomplishment of power arises:
a power rooted in wisdom, guided by compassion, and expressed through a mind that perceives all beings without obstruction.

This is the power of the spiritual genius—effortless, luminous, and wholly dedicated to the liberation of others.
